THOMASTON, Vt., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—

He has been confined to the insane department of the city hospital, where he is under constant observation. He is, in fact, under double guard, while William M. Smith, sixty-six, known as "Blaze," said Smith, a life convict, is dead, as a result of Brooks' murder. Smith is the case in one of the most complicated cases in the history of the city hospital, which is the department for the demented, and he is being watched by a number of all the witnesses to the tragedy are stranded here.

Brooks and a number of other prisoners had been removed from their cells, and the officers were arranging the scene. The men were marching back when Brooks, who was in the lead, fell from his feet, and he had wrenched from his coat, on which he was leaning.

Smith fell to the floor and was removed to the hospital, where he died a few hours later.

A autopsy is held today.

Isn't it about time to treat these big respectable criminals as the little criminals have been treated? It will be an honor to Governor Hughes, not soon forgotten, if he shall prove to be the man with the energy and moral character to carry out this reform. He will have the thanks of every father, of every honest business man, of every citizen who realizes the shame of special regulations licensing big criminal and manufacturing little ones.
